- 25X1X 1. On 10 June 1951, the command post of the 315 Seoul Regiment of the North Korean army was at Kaomijae-dong, Pongso-nyon (126-05, 37-57), Yonbaek County. The regiment belongs to the Korean National Guard. Its commander is Captain PYO Ma-won (朴 文 均), formerly the guerrilla chief of Hongch'on.
2. On 10 June 1951, the command post of the North Korean 1 Division Rear was at Chungdu-ri, Muzen-nyon (approximately 126-10, 38-18), Pyongsan County. On 20 May, the North Korean 1 Division forward command post was near Paekyon Falls (BT 901073) in an air raid shelter. It was supplied by a regular daily truck delivery. Food supplies, including 25,000 bags of rice brought from Yonbaek County, were stored in a valley thick with trees (at BT 770259), southwest of Kunch'on (126-29, 38-09). The rice bags were stacked up three and a half meters wide and two meters high.
3. One company of Chinese Communist troops occupied the Kunch'on hills and the area of the Kyonggi Province refugee camp on 6 June. On 5 June, there was a food supply point in Paeksong-ni (126-22, 38-08). On 3 June, a North Korean division had headquarters at Chongsu-ri, Muga-nyon, Pyongsan County; its men were in private houses in the locality.
4. On 29 May, an unidentified Chinese Communist division had its headquarters at Surryong-ni and a company of men. At Madong (125-52, 38-28), the town was in flames following a United Nations air raid but was still being held by 50 to 60 Chinese Communist troops. The road from Sariwon to Kunch'on was filled with a heavy concentration of troops. Thirty supply trucks were observed moving towards Madong, where they stop during the day. Military police stationed on the road one kilometer apart were relaying messages by flute.
5. On 23 May, a group of about 200 Communist officials passed through Pyongnando (126-24, 37-56). The chief of the group, Major PAEK Chil-hong, chief of the Politburo (sic) in Seoul, told a local resident that the group was headed for Tuch'on-nyon.
